Arpi Continues Bibliography Work

Rich Arpi continues to prepare Current Baseball Publications, the quarterly newsletter of the SABR Bibliography Committee. It contains a list of recently published books and magazines on baseball. The newsletter is free to all committee members, and all issues since 1995 can be viewed on the SABR web page at:

Cow Chips

Glenn Gostick was featured in an article on Dick Cassidy in the Saturday, May 13, 2000 Star Tribune, Newspaper of the Twin Cities. "No one knows and loves the game more than him," Cassidy said of Gos. . . . Roger Godin went to Ottawa for the Society for International Hockey Research convention and made a presentation on the 1915-16 St. Paul Athletic Club team, winners of the McNaughton Cup. . . . Seth C. "Dr. Fan" Hawkins got to his 61st major league baseball stadium, Comerica Park in Detroit, over Mothers' Day weekend. He also sampled the wares at nearby Jacoby's German Biergarten and provided a review of what he called "one of my toughest meals ever: the sauerbraten seemed to have been from an era before Sam Crawford set his triples record and somewhat resembled 'texturally' Hugh Jennings's least favorite glove." Seth got to ballpark number 62 in June when he went to Houston and saw some games at Enron Field. In addition to all that, Dr. Fan was quoted in a May 12, 2000 Associated Press article on the Metrodome. . . . Pete Hepokoski and his wife, Mary, went on vacation in the Pacific Northwest and saw a Mariners-White Sox game at Safeco Field on Memorial Day (with the ceremonial first pitch being thrown out by a survivor of the Bataan Death March).

Late Breaking Cow Chips

Rachel Laurie, wife of Ian, won a contest on WCCO Radio last March that was good for a free trip to Spring Training for Rachel and her family (which, in addition to Ian, includes an infant son, Dayton). The crew saw four Twins games as well as one Red Sox game, in which Pedro Martinez pitched. They also made many visits to Sanibel Island and explored the Corkscrew Swamp.

Stay tuned to Cow Chips for more up-to-the-minute news on the lives of Halsey Hall Chapter members.

KARE-11 to Feature Area Ballparks

Following the All-Star Game on Tuesday, July 11, the KARE-TV (Channel 11) news will have a feature on Nicollet and Lexington parks, homes of the Minneapolis Millers and St. Paul Saints. The talking heads on the segment will include Rich Arpi and your scribe.

Chapter Profiles

Rich Wolf is hoping to come off the 60-day disabled list after a year-and-a-half of being ill and going through two surgeries last summer. Rich has been a lifelong baseball fan. He was batboy for the St. John's University baseball team, for which his brother played, when he was nine. Rich later played high school baseball and town ball in Long Prairie. His two great thrills in baseball were touring the Hall of Fame and seeing two games with his sons at Fenway Park. A retired CPA, Rich has an interest in statistics and is the statistician for one of the two Rotisserie Leagues he is in.

Ray Luurs is from Presho, South Dakota. He attended his first game in 1970, the day after a bomb threat delayed a Twins game, and saw Bert Blyleven shut out the Red Sox, 7-0. Ray is now a courier in the Twin Cities. He has a daughter, Courtney (16); son, Geoff (12); and granddaughter, Kaeleigh; in addition to a wife, Kris.
